Child Specialist Lectured Here On Monday, June 13

Dr. Thomas G. Folsom Gave Lecture to Physicians of Grenada County.

Physicians of Grenada and adjoining counties arranged for a series of lectures on children's diseases which were held this week. The initial lecture was held Monday, in the Community House, Grenada, at 1:15 p. m.

Dr. Thomas G. Folsom, formerly of Denison University and the University of Cincinnati Medical School, gave a lecture to physicians of Grenada and adjoining counties each night.. Subjects of the lectures were:

Monday, June 13—"Problems of the Newborn."

Tuesday, June 14—"Infant Feeding—Simplified."

Wednesday, June 15—"Important Illnesses of Infancy."

Thursday, June 16—"Important Illnesses of Childhood."

Friday, June 17—"Perplexing Pediatric Problems."

Dr. Folsom has had wide teaching experience and demonstrated what good pediatric service can be rendered by the family physician in his daily practice. At a recent meeting of the Grenada County Medical Profession, a committee on Arrangements and Clinical Material was selected and Dr. F. S. Hill, Grenada, was appointed chairman.

The meeting was held at the request of Q. Edward Gatlin, Secretary of the Committee on Postgraduate Medical Education. This program of postgraduate medical education which brings to the physicians in the field of practice the newer methods of diagnosis and treatment is a continuation of the program initiated by the Mississippi State Medical Association a few years ago. The program was sponsored by the Division of Medical Extension, Tulane University of Louisiana, in cooperation with the Mississippi State Medical Association, the Mississippi State Board of Health, and the Mississippi State Hospital Association. According to G. Ed. Gatlin, Secretary and organizer of the Medical Association's Postgraduate Medical Education program, millions of dollars are being spent by the Federal Government, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Commonwealth Fund, and other philanthropic organizations for medical research and the purpose of the entire medical education program is to carry the newer methods of diagnosis and treatment to the family physician so that they in turn can give better service to the communities.

Physicians attending the meeting from Grenada, Tallahatchie, Yalobusha, Panola, Montgomery and Carroll counties were:

Drs. J. K. Avent, T. J. Brown, S. B. Caruthers, R. A. Clanton, F. B. Coats, A. S. Hill, F. S. Hill, E. B. Provine, H. T. Rogers, J. S. Sharp, of Grenada, and E. C. Rouse, of Graysport.

First Cotton Bloom of Season Received

The first cotton bloom received by The Sentinel this year was brought in last Friday, June 10th by Mr Claude Hall. Mr. Hall stated that the bloom was found on his place in Tallahatchie county near Phillipp on the morning of June 8th.

Green Terrell, 72 year old negro, is foreman on the Hall plantation. He was born about the time of the Confederate Surrender. His mother was a slave and belonged to the Terrill family.

The Hall place is farmed exclusively by colored tenants and is noted for the fine crops it produces.

Mr. Hall is known by Grenadians as a "long distance farmer". He hasn't visited his place in two years, doing his farming by mail

The first cotton bloom of the season grown in Grenada county and brought to The Sentinel office came from the J. W. Ligon place (old Captain Jack Williams place) east of Graysport. The cotton was grown by Mr. Lawrence Betterton who found the bloom on June 10th, and sent it to The Sentinel on June 11th.

Grenada County WPA Workers Observe Project Day

Many Citizens Viewed The Exhibits At The Community House

Project Day was observed by WPA workers in Grenada county in the Community House last Thursday, June 9, from three until six o'clock, when an exhibition of project activities was shown and a program was given by the Recreation Department. Among the crowd of Grenada citizens who viewed the exhibits were the sponsors of the library project, the Grenada county board of supervisors, the superintendent of city schools, members of civic clubs and Grenada city officials.

Out of town visitors included WPA workers from Winona, Calhoun City, Greenwood, Marks and Mrs. Mary D. Whitehead, Area Supervisor of Women's and Professional Project Day activities.

Exhibits were on display during the entire day. Included was a fashion show, prepared by the sewing room, when women's sports dresses, men's tailored suits and children's clothing were displayed.

Old "Mammy Ann," a negro woman who gave her age as 108, the oldest person on relief in Grenada, and who said she remembered when the "stars fell", represented the Department of Public Welfare, which also is a certifying agency for CCC, NYA, and WPA, each of these divisions being represented by the boys and girls as to the respective positions.

Other exhibits included a display of fresh and canned vegetables by the gardening and canning project; a miniature landscape scene depicting the work of the Wild Life department and arranged by Miss Estelle Rollins, the instructor; handicraft articles showing the activities of the recreation group; Housekeeping Aide, where home-made articles that are essential in house-keeping work were displayed; and a display of surplus commodities which are distributed throughout the county by the commodity project.

ABELARD

(By W. E. Boushe)

Some days ago in conversation with my much esteemed and learned friend, Mr. William Dubard, he made this remark, that there was no such thing as absolutely correct history. That time and different view points, errors intended or otherwise, would bring out conflicting versions of the same happenings. I was forcibly brought face to face with this in my article in The Sentinel on our Preachers Today and Yesterday In mentioning the early Methodist preacher of Grenada, the name SIMS was typed SIMONS and the name ABELARD was typed ABELAND. So with your permission I digress from my usual line of writing and take for my subject ABELARD, whom I mentioned as one of those who held aloft the torch of civilization through the dark ages until the age of Renaissance. The story of ABELARD and HELOISE make one of the most beautiful and one of the most pathetic, as well as most tragic, love stories not only of the benighted time in which they lived but of all time ABELARD'S mind was a thousand years in advance of the time in which he lived. He represented in that day something in comparison with ideas then in vogue, now would be called modernism or free thought. His tormentors, though fundamentalism had not as a rule reached savagery of TORQUEMANDO, were not far behind it. Pierre Abelard died a monk of the order of St. Benedict. His father was a wealthy planter of the upper class living at the village of Pallet, France, and there today stands a very magnificent monument to Abelard and Heloise at the place of his birth. Abelard asked his father to divide his property among the other children but give him a finished education which his father SEDENGER did. Abelard studied law, philosophy and the ancient languages and classics. Having learned all the colleges of his neighborhood had to teach him he went to Paris for further study, to a university which at that time was considered the greatest seat of learning in the world and where wealth and intelligence flocked. His teacher was the great and well known CHAMPEAUX a rigid realist, literalist or fundamentalist interpreter of the scripture, and was considered the most learned and best versed scriptoran in all the world. At first he greatly admired ABELARD but in a short time the pupil far surpassed the teacher and in Biblical debates CHAPEAUX who for years had been the world's master could no longer compete. He branded ABELARD as a Heritic or infidel. ABELARD was forced to leave the school. At this time he was twenty-two. He organized a college of his own. Most of his old school mates left the old college and came to him which further angered the literalist. CHAMPEAUX challenged ABELARD to debate before all Paris. ABELARD was completely victorious. The old school lost all its pupils and had to close down. The hatred of the clergy was now thoroughly aroused, but he was befriended by Canon Fulbert who not only protected him but sent his beautiful intelligent and attractive niece HELOISE to his school. ABELARD fell desperately in love with her and she with him. Under pretext of finishing her education he moved into Fulbert's house where his conduct in abusing the confidence of Fulbert placed in him opened Fulbert's eyes. He was compelled to flee to Britany. However, she followed him. Fulbert gave his consent to marriage. A son was born who only lived a short time. The marriage was kept secret. Abelard continued his school. She lived with her uncle Fulbert. Abelard afterwards carried her off to a convent. Fulbert believed Abelard had grown tired of her and was going to make her a nun. Fulbert was enraged. With an armed band he entered ABELARD'S room. He was horribly mutilated. The consequence of which he became a monk, Heloise a nun. It was at this time Heloise wrote her great love epistle to ABELARD, one of the world's classics. The greatest outpouring of love and affliction and despondency ever penned by woman's hand. It has come down to us a classic and a masterpiece. His letter in answer was also a masterpiece. The original of both of these letters are now on exhibition in Paris Museum. I read them in the book Prize Classics in the Book of the Month Club book. ABELARD continued in his studies and lectures. He grew greater and more renowned each day, the literalists each day hatred and feared him. His greatest fame came with his lecture the TRINITY for which he was tried for heresy. He was compelled to burn his works in public and ordered to appear before the Pope. Heloise, now head of a great convent ABELARD had built for her, grew in fame grace and wisdom. She was loved and almost worshiped. ABELARD, persecuted from pillar to post, died on his way to Rome for hearing before the Pope. Thus went out one of the most human, most intelligent and most long suffering characters of history. Heloise, several hundred miles away went for his body. He was buried in the convent yards in a silver casket. Heloise tended the flowers around it, the remaining years of her life with her own hands. When she died she was buried beside him. In centuries afterwards, when the age of reason cast its shadows over the horizon bigotry, hate and intolerance, the bodies of these two immortals were taken up and placed in one casket. United in death, they were placed in a magnificent tomb, which bears only this inscription "ABELARD AND HELOISE."

Weekly News Letter

(By W. F. Bond)

Nearly every month there are some checks sent out to the needy aged that are not cashed. Since these checks are void thirty days after they are sent out they certainly should be cashed within that length of time. We send the checks on the first of each month, rather than at the close of the month, so that they may be endorsed, cashed, and used for the benefit of one to whom it was sent.

Frequently there is a delay in the cashing of check, and the one in whose favor it is made dies before endorsing it. In a case of this kind it must be returned to the Jackson office, for it cannot be cashed by any of the friends or relatives

'Rotary Members From 80 Counties Meet June 19 to 24

Five Continents Sending Delegations and Representatives to 29th Convention

San Francisco, Calif., June 15—Rotary International's 200,000 members, scattered through 80 different countries and geographical regions, in all five continents, are sending delegations and representatives here for the 29th annual convention, June 19 to 24. Convention Manager Howard H. Feighmer predicts: "It will be the greatest international assembly Rotary has ever had on a large scale."

International President Maurice Duperrey, well known industrialist and official economic advisor to France, will report his observations during the past twelve months in which he covered 40 different countries and 200 cities. He has been received by the chief executives of nineteen nations, and will present "A Bird's Eye View" of the world in his main address at the convention.

On June 18 there will be dedicated one of the largest and oldest sequoias in the Santa Cruz redwood reservation to Rotary International, in commemoration of the organization's service in the interest of international peace. It is a special honor, since only five other trees have been dedicated.

San Francisco's city authorities have turned over the main Civic Center plaza, and the Municipal Auditorium, with its huge accommodations, to Rotary for the full week. The Fox Theatre, seating 5,000, will be used for the plenary sessions in which future policies will be framed. The Civic Opera House and Veterans' Building are also reserved for the international gathering, which will be unique in the city's history.

The general theme of the elaborate program will be the Rotarian ideal of good neighborliness and a better international understanding amongst citizens everywhere, and a discussion of the practical ways and means for "implementing" this ideal with useful service in the

Permanent Cotton National Council Advocated, of National Interest and More Particularly The South

Cleveland, Miss., June, 15.—Representatives from seven cotton-producing states, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Texas, at a cotton conference meeting here today sponsored by the Delta Council, voted to form a temporary cotton council dedicated to set up a National Cotton Council, designed to weld all cotton interests in an effort to place cotton and its by-products on a sound footing.

Oscar Johnston, of Scott, Miss., planter and one of the best authorities on cotton in the world, was unanimously chosen to head the new organization. Rhea Blake, of Greenville, Miss., secretary of the Delta Council, was selected as temporary secretary. He was empowered to appoint such other officials as might be necessary for the organization.

Mr. Johnston stressed the fact that the organization was only temporary and would lead to the organization of a permanent National Council which, he hoped would be functioning by August 1.

The purpose of the National Council, in brief, will be:

To seek the development and enlargement of world cotton markets for American cotton.

1. Increasing the consumption of cotton in known uses by intensive, scientific and wide-spread advertisement.

2. Encourage scientific research in an effort to develop new uses for cotton products. Make scientific tests to determine the comparative value of cotton and cottonseed products with other commodities and products with which the cotton products compete in markets of the world.

3. Sponsor legislation designed to promote the consumption of cotton and cottonseed products throughout the world. Combat legislation which discriminates against, or penalizes the use of cotton and cottonseed products in American markets .

4. Promote international reciprocal trade agreements.

5. Co-ordinate the activities of the various agencies and organizations interested in the achievement of any of the objectives in which the National Council is interested.

Governor Hugh White of Mississippi pledged a state appropriation to be submitted to an extraordinary session of the legislature assembling June 27, to give the organization a financial start.

It was suggested that the temporary organization make an effort to obtain from any available source or sources, contributions, donations and subscriptions sufficient to cover organization expenses, and to provide, if possible, a minimum of $50,000 to be used by the temporary organization and the permanent National Council, when organized, for financing the budget for its first fiscal year.

The meeting of the Delta Council, at which the temporary organization was perfected, followed an address by Dr. Sayre, assistant secretary of state in charge of administering national marketing agreements. Dr. Sayre urged the cotton leaders to support the state

Farm Compliance Program Begun Last Wednesday

Benefits Payments To Grenada County Farmers To Approximate $175,000.

The task of checking 67,000 acres of crops with aerial photographs under the 1938 farm adjustment program for the farmers of Grenada County began this week. The following compliance supervisors will check every individual field in the county: J. B. Owens; A. Y. McBride; Robert Carver; Martin Adams; Hubert Clark; W. A. Hayward; Hurd Horton; Charles Warner, and Alonzo Billups. Each landowner will be requested to accompany the supervisor in checking his farm to see that each field is visited and that a satisfactory check is made of the field boundary and of the growing crops.

This huge task must be completed by August 1, or before cotton marketing begins as each farm will be given a marketing quota of bales to sell tax free. All farms found to be in compliance with the cotton acreage allotments will be used "White Cards" which entitles them to market all cotton produced tax free. All farms out of compliance and planting in excess of their acreage allotments will be issued "Red Cards" which represents a "marketing quota" that can be sold "tax-free," but all cotton produced in excess of this "marketing quota" can be ginned and sold only when all cotton is harvested and by paying two cents a pound tax to the cotton buyers.

All farmers and cotton buyers party to an illegal sale of tax cotton are subject to a "five hundred dollar fine" and the cost of the tax due.

1938 Benefit Payments Approximate $175,000

The 1938 farm benefit payments to farmers of Grenada County will approximate $175,000, while in 1937 the benefit payments amounted to only $40,000. The 3 cents "subsidy payment" will amount to about $75,000 and the cotton benefit payment will be about $100,000. The total payments of $175,000 are equivalent to the value of 4,375 bales of cotton at the present price.

Miss Addie H. Barrow At Peabody College

It is my happy privilege this summer to again meet friends of other days on the Peabody Campus, Nashville. Many from my own state, and others from states east, west, north and south. I deem it an opportunity to be a member of classes taught by some of Peabody's instructors, but I consider, too, that I am fortunate in contacting and making new friends, and again seeing friends of summers ago. These ties of friendship make life sweeter and more satisfying.

The verses below so well express my thoughts and feelings that Iam sending them to your paper with hearty greetings to my Grenada friends and pupils.

'I Love People"

I love people,
The old men
Who knowing God, are wise,
And live in gentle contemplation.

The little children
Bright as the sun,
Free as the wind
Pure as a flower.
The young men
And women,
Who facing adventure
Plow through the waves of life unafraid,
And remain
Beautiful, bold and brave.
But best of all
I love those
Who are loaded with sorrow,
But still
See the face of God.

Jitney-Jungle Bacon Goes to Texas

The Jitney-Jungle reported that they had a customer to buy several pounds of bacon this week to take along with her on a visit to Texas. The lady told us, said Messrs. Gully and Ellis, that on previous visits to Texas she had never been able to find any bacon she liked and, in fact, the people whom she visited didn't like it.

That lady was really "taking home the bacon," said Mr. Ellis.

Letter To The Editor

Editor Grenada Sentinel
Dear Editor:

It seems to me that there is a good deal of talk among the people of the country about the Home Exemption Law that Governor White says he is going to call an extra session of the Legislature in June to pass. Some of the boys have asked me to give them my views on it through the columns of your paper. So the first question is, who will it help? If I have been rightfully informed by the papers, there is 67 percent of the population of the state that are renters, share-croppers or tenants. So he could not hope to help but a small part of the other 33 percent that would come under the law or would be eligible for exemption. Your guess would be as good as mine, but I would say about one-third as eleven percent of the state would be benefitted.

The second question is, who will it hurt or who will have it to pay? Judging from what the governor has said in his last two or three talks in regards to the law he expects to raise the Sales Tax and Tobacco and Cigarette Tax and some other small unimportant taxes. And of course that puts the whole thing on the shoulders of the 67 per cent, that are renting, share cropping and day working. Now, they will ask you why it will do that? Why the negro and farmers generally will have to pay it. I say that 20 percent of the 33 percent that own their own homes will get in their cars and go to Memphis and spend their money for the things they want and come on home, the other 80 percent can't do that. These fools, they pay the taxes buying at home. I am not against the Sales Tax. I think it is the finest tax we have today. But I am against putting one or two cents on the Sales Tax and giving it to people that maybe don't need it and will put it in a bank and take it out of circulation. If it was a national proposition I would say it would be unconstitutional. That is what was the matter with the Tripple A, taking a Process Tax from the spinner and giving it to the farmer, that made it unconstitutional.

The Exemption Law he wants to pass don't cover enough ground—it don't help the people that really need help the most, and it seems to me that if the governor is just got to give 10 million dollars to one certain class of people in the state that he could find a better way to use it than by the exemption route. If you think this is worth printing, will give you more next week. There is a whole lot that could be said against the law.

Yours truly,

John Murphy.

Yes, Mother, Round Worms are everywhere. Signs are only too common. Look around you at the pale faces, thin bodies of delicate, irritable or nervous children. These signs may mean Worms. Other signs are broken sleep, bad dreams, poor appetite, fidgeting, nose picking, etc.

Don't be surprised if your own child shows symptoms of this unseen pest. Even the greatest care and cleanliness may not prevent Round Worms. Ask your druggist, to find out for sure, and he'll say

U. S. WHEAT, CORN EXPORTS GAIN: IMPORTS ARE SMALLER

The United States is now exporting over 300 times as much corn and over 8,000 times as much wheat as it is importing, according to figures just received from Washington by E. H. White, state director of extension.

In April alone corn exports were 20,698,000 bushels. The April exports are more corn than the United States has exported in any full year since 1929. Imports of corn during the same month were 55,000 bushels.

April wheat exports were 8,166,000 bushels while 1,000 bushels of wheat were imported. Wheat exports from July 1, 1937, to April 30, 1938, were 76,159,000 bushels and imports during the same period were 696,000 bushels.

From November 1, 1937, to April 30, 1938, only 529,000 bushels of corn have been imported while 64,844,000 bushels were exported. Corn exports for this 6-month period were higher than those for any year since 1923.

"The United States normally exports only small quantities of corn. Corn is usually exported in the form of pork products. From July 1, 1937, to April 30, 1938, the United States has exported 214,697,000 pounds of pork, including lard. Imports during the same period are 55,560,000 pounds. As hogs production expands in this country after the adverse effects of the two droughts, exports of pork can be expected to increase and imports decrease," Director White said.

"The comparatively high import of corn and wheat in the first part of 1937 were due to the drought which sharply reduced production in the United States. After the good wheat and corn crops in 1937, the situation was reversed. The United States resumed its normal position as an exporter of wheat and increased exports of corn above normal because Argentine farmers had only half a crop."

Easterling-Grant.

One of the most outstanding and beautiful weddings of the season was that of Miss Martha Lynn Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Grant and Rev. Pat Easterling, son of Mrs. Etta Dudley, which took place Tuesday, June 14, at high noon, in the First Presbyterian Church.

The church was decorated in green and white. The altar rail, with a back ground of white, was banked with ferns and trailing ivy, interspersed with large white baskets of Shasta daisies. Tall white candles burned in cathedral stndards, on either side of the altar.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. R. G. Brown, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. C. H. Calhoon, organist, who offered Nevin's "Venetian Love Song", and d'Hardelot's "Love's Greetings". Mrs. Thomas Grant sang, "Because" in her sweet and talented voice. Mr. James Mecklin, of Belzoni, sang "Ah, Sweet Mistery of Life". A vested choir of six comprised of Mrs. B. C. Adams, Mrs. Roger Dollarhide, Mrs. Rogers Pleasants, Mrs. Thomas Grant, Mr. F. R. Lickfold, Sr., and Mr. James Mecklin, most impressively sang the marriage hymn, "On Perfect Love".

For the processional Mrs. Calhoon played the bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin" and for the recessional Mendelsohn's Wedding March. As the bridal pair exchanged their vows, "Leibestraum" was played softly on the organ. The ring ceremony was read by the Reverend C. A. Pharr, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Grenada.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of white net over silk crepe, with a three tiered veil of illusion, held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and valley lilies. Miss Isabel Bailey, as maid of honor, and the bride's only attendant, wore a graceful floor length gown of shadow organdy in white, over taffeta, and a white hat, trimmed in green moline and valley lilies. She carried colonial bouquet of white sweet peas.

The groom wore a boutonniere of valley lilies and his best man, Rev. Alex Hunter, of Little Rock, Ark., a gardenia. The bride's father, Rev. Pharr and the groomsmen, Messrs. John James Nichols, Junius Lee Townes, Frank T. Gerard and Thomas Grant wore boutonnieres of white carnations. All were attired in white linen suits.

Immediately after the ceremony Rev. and Mrs. Easterling left on their wedding trip and upon their return will make their home in Sardis.

Death Of Mildred Spain Widely Mourned

(Editor's Note: We are reprinting the following article taken from the Booneville Independent for the reason that we think it will be of interest to our readers. Miss Spain's father was in the grocery business for several years, at one time being associated with Mrs. J. M. Cooley. The news of her death will bring sorrow to many of her school mates for she had many friends here.)

When the message came that Mildred Spain had died, scarcely a person who knew her could find adequate expression for his or her grief-laden thoughts. First, because she was poised on life's threshold, and next because Mildred's life was loveliness itself, a flower unfolding with purest fragrance and beauty serene. In an attempt to determine why her going was such undefinable pain, we recall the words of Dr. Matas: "Death is cruel, it is absurd, it is abominable, when it attacks the infant at the breast, and the child that is born to live; when it attacks the robust man in the plentitude of his virility and usefulness and when his mission is only begun; when it destroys the young mother, leaving after her her orphaned offsprings to the uncertainties of fate. But the most desolating death, that which cuts the deepest intaglio in the tablets of our memory, is the death of the young woman stricken in all the splendor and fragrance of her youth, If to the natural charm, smypathy and gentleness and confining truthfulness of youth, she possesses . . beauty, we sum up a combination of elements which intensify to the utmost our undetached feeling."

Miss Spain suffered a severe illness while she was a child from which she never fully recovered and which contributed to her fragility, but never shadowed her happiness. To her schoolmates she was a friend of exceptional sweetness and good humor. In the classroom her work was superior, evidenced by excellent grades and literary endeavor. She frequently competed and won in inter-school contests; her verse found ready acceptance; in a state-wide temperance contest her essay was awarded first place. When she was graduated from the Booneville High School hers was the highest average in her class.

But the secret of her life was an inner, vibrant beauty that all who knew her can only say was—Christ-like Mildred was a member of the First Baptist Church here, and could always be found busy serving in some phase of the church work. She sponsored the Junior B. Y. P. U. and she taught in the Junior Department of the Sunday school. Her interest in and close contact with small boys and girls no doubt explains the fine perception evinced in the last published poem, clipped just Saturday evening from The Poet's Corner of The Press-Scimitar:

To A Little Boy

I thought when I gave you that day
A tiny shovel and a flower pot
That you'd go play
And fill it up with sand.
You took the flowers from my new spring hat—
The one that I liked best—
And digging in the ground
You filled the little pot with dirt,
Pressed in the buds of wax and wire
And watered them just as you'd seen me do.
Then with your little eyes afire
You brought them in for me to view!

I could not spank you, dear,
Or even scold, or say a word
To cause a tear.
For after all—
Altho' you'll be a man some time, I pray—
Right now you are small
You could not realize
Just what you did to my new hat for May
You only knew—I saw it in your eyes—
A flower was a thing that grew.
You had such fun—
That's why I only held you close
And kissed your glowing face
And said, "It's lovely, son!"

—Mildred Spain.

Booneville, Miss.

At Union University Mildred's life was surrounded by friends who loved her and found her life a lovely light. As usual she identified herself with her church work, and was most active in the Baptist Training Group of the Calvary Baptist Church of Jackson. In the spring illness in her family and her own health necessitated a suspension of the college routine. Her last illness was brief, and she died as serenely as she had lived, "crossing the bar" as the sun rose over our world left saddened but more beautiful for her having lived in it.

Funeral services were held from the First Baptist Church at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. B. B Hilburn, visiting evangelist, the Rev. J. D. Thompson, pastor of the church, and Mr. S. H. Sargent, dean of Union University paid fitting tributes. Miss Ernestine Sipo, a college-mate, sang "Some Day We'll Understand." Floral tributes banked the pulpit and overflowed to the aisles The church was filled with sorrowing friends.

Surviving are: her parents, one brother, Herbert, two sisters, Dorothy, and Mrs. Claude Loveless.

Burial in Booneville cemetery, with McMillan and Son in charge.

Pallbearers: Messrs. Ray Bond, Willard Palmer, David Sadler, R. B. Loveless, Hoyt Box, Otha Maxwell and Woodrow Davis.—Booneville Independent.

INCONSISTENCY.

During the last session of the legislature the excise tax on cigars was reduced as much as 80%, dependent on the grade and selling price on the smoke. This reduction, we were told, was made with the idea that it would reduce the amount of tax revenue lost through bootlegging and out-of-state purchase of cigars. That is quite feasable.

Prior to the passage of this act, the excise tax on a box of fifty cigars was 50c. Under the present law the tax is 10c, a tax reduction of 80%.

Now Governor White comes along and proposes to exempt all homes from advalorem taxes, state, county, district and municipal, with the exception of taxes that have been levied to cover bonded indebtedness. To partly off-set the loss in revenue to the state and other departments of our state government, the governor advocates that the present tax of 3c per package on cigarettes be upped 1c, 25%. In other words, cigarette smokers will be required to pay 4c state excise tax on every package of cigarettes they purchase in the state of Mississippi. He also proposes certain luxury taxes, such as a tax on soft drinks, to partly off-set this loss in revenue.

If a high excise tax on cigars will encourage bootlegging and out-of-state buying of this item, does it not follow that the same will apply to cigarettes? It will. The ideas and expressions of some of our lawmakers are so inconsistent that they are down-right absurd and ridiculous.

We think the homestead exemption plan one of the best things that could be provided for the people of Mississippi if it were not for the fact that it will merely shift the burden of taxation from one class of person to another overburdened with taxation. In short, we think the homestead exemption is an hallucination. There is no use in robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Under the plan, the home owner will be exempt from all advalorem taxes, with the exception of those taxes levied to pay bonded indebtedness, while the person financially unable to own a home will pay MORE TAXES through the medium of rent demanded of him by his landlord. In addition, the renter will be required to share an additional burden of taxation in order that the home owner may be granted tax exemption. If he buys a package of cigarettes, a soft drink, or some other luxury, he will be required to put up an extra cent. Of course, the home owner will be required to do the same thing, but in order that he may not have his home taxed,

Cities must have funds to finance the ordinary functions of organized government, such as police and fire protection, garbage control and other things necessary to the health, comfort and existence of its inhabitants. If the homestead exemption plan becomes a law it will be necessary for them to seek other sources of revenue to take the place of that source of which they will be deprived. It will mean increasing the valuation or rate of taxation on business and rental property. And again the renter will be paying an unjust tax for the benefit of a privileged class. The electric and water distribution systems in some localities are municipally owned, and the light and water rates will be increased in order to furnish the source of revenue to off-set the loss in revenue to them provided under the homestead exemption plan. And again the renter will pay.

While we would like to see the home freed from taxes of all kinds, we believe the homestead exemption plan unsound and unworkable.

Our article is not intended as a dig at Governor White. We have never tried to harass his administration, but in this instance, we think he is "all wet".

department's program of international marketing agreements.

"Surely the soundest and most effective way to find increased markets at home and abroad," said Dr. Sayre, "is to remove or reduce the excessive and economically unjustifiable trade barriers which since 1929 have been disastrously blocking the trade highways of the world.

"Under present-day conditions the most practical way to move for increased foreign markets and the elimination of foreign trade discrimination against American export is by a series of agreements with industrial countries to bargain down excessive trade barriers and reciprocally to guarantee each others trade against discrimination."

ROTARY MEMBERS

community and in each nation.

Unusually large delegations have been reported aboard ships coming from China and Japan. Rotarians from South America and South Africa have made more extensive reservations than usual at the hotels. The clubs from Germany and Austria will be missing this year, and these will be the only European countries not represented at this great international assembly which is noted for the influence which it exerts unofficially and quietly in all quarters of the globe.

California was the first state in the Union to take up the "idea" of Rotary which Paul Harris, noted Chicago lawyer, had developed into the luncheon club form, and put the organization on the national basis. San Francisco's Club became Number 2 on the list. Oakland followed third.

Paul Harris, founder of the organization, in a recently issued greeting message, said: "This is a transcendent year in Rotary. The reason is the present world-wide unrest. The air is full of propaganda, skillfully appealing to prejudices. Rotarians, as ambassadors of goodwill, must exercise a stabilizing influence. In so doing, we can render our country and civilization a sorely needed service. Rotary stands for friendliness, kindliness, tolerance—virtue needed in national affairs. We are entering a period of fuller internationality. We must do so cautiously. As ambassadors of goodwill, we naturally align ourselves in opposition to the domination of prejudice and passion, and with the forces of reason, decency, common sense. There is no profit in war, win or lose."

President Duperrey outlined his ideas in the following statement: "The international spirit, such as we conceive it, has nothing in common with that which would obliterate frontiers and suppress the traditional characteristics of each country by melting them together. Such an internationalism is the very opposite ours.

"We strive for the harmonious and peaceful coexistence of all national civilizations, the diversity of which constitutes the spiritual wealth of the world. In all countries Rotarians pride themselves upon being enlightened patriots, ready for the greatest sacrifices for the well-being of the national community of which they are a part, and respectful of its laws and customs. But this does not stop Rotarians from seeking to understand and respect the same feeling on the part of those who are under the jurisdiction of other nations.

"It is in shedding around them this tolerance, the basis of international understanding, by making it radiate and penetrate to the deepest strata of the population that Rotarians may hope their cooperation will be utilized in the work of eradicating the psychological germs of war."

SERVEL
ELECTROLUX
RUNS ON Gas OR Kerosene

CITY living comes to the farm! Servel Electrolux, the gas refrigerator, also runs on kerosene (coal oil). The same identical refrigerator that is giving pleasure and health and savings to one million city homes today. Think of it! Ice cream any time. Ice cubes. Leftovers can be saved and used. Fresh meat every day, with one trip a week to the store. And all this on 3 or 4 cents worth of kerosene per day!

Best of all, this is the one refrigerator that has no moving parts. Nothing to wear. Nothing to vibrate, to knock, to make any noise whatever. Nothing to cause trouble or repairs, now or years from now. Savings it makes will pay for it in your home. Come in and see how easy it is to own.

★ No Moving Parts to Wear . . . to Cause Trouble or Costly Repairs . . .
★ Silent—Now and Forever . . .
★ No Electricity or Water Required . . .
★ One Filling Lasts a Week . . .
★ Thermostatic Control—Light It and Forget It . . .
★ Other Models Run on Natural Gas . . . Bottled Gas . . . Butane

"It is a pleasure to recommend the Servel Electrolux kerosene refrigerator to every farm home, because its care-free service makes food problems so simple. Left-overs keep fresh and wholesome, and we have ice-cream all the time, and fresh meat the year around. It furnishes an abundance of ice cubes for summer drinks, as well."—MRS. ARTHUR PONDER, RFD, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

"My Servel Electrolux is such a convenience and so economical, that I simply would not think of being without it. I can keep food indefinitely, and plenty of ice cubes in hot weather are certainly a pleasure. Best of all, it costs about 3 cents a day to operate."—MRS. A. P. HOOKS, Rector, Ark.

"I bought my Servel Electrolux April 16, 1934. Today it gives the same satisfaction as the day I bought it, although it went through a flood, water 28 inches deep for seven days. We just cleaned it and lighted it, and it went back to work the same as before. 5 gallons of kerosene lasts from 10 to 11 days, although besides family use, we keep cold drinks and meats for our store in it. Apparently it will last a lifetime."—MRS. HENRY MILAM, Sledge, Miss.

"In 4 years' constant use, our Servel Electrolux has never cost more than 55c or 60c per month to run. It has never cost us one cent for repairs."—Mrs. Roy Pritchard, Memphis, Tenn.

MUCH MONEY TO BE SPENT FOR REMEDIES

State College, Miss., June 15.—During June and July Mississippi farmers are likely to spend considerable money for remedies that are recommended in the treatment of coccidiosis, one of the most widespread parasitic diseases of young chickens. The acute form of the disease often causes death among birds up to 2 months of age.

F. J. Beanblossom, poultry specialist of the Mississippi Extension Service says that many treatments have been tried and advocated for curing coccidiosis, but the opinion of poultry investigators is that none of these treatments are effective.

The best way to fight coccidiosis, says Mr. Beanblossom, is to practice rigid sanitary measures and thus prevent its getting a start in the flock. Daily cleaning and disinfection of the brooder house and poultry yards are effective in preventing spread of the disease.

A well-balanced diet which is supplemented by a generous amount of green feed is important for building up the young bird's resistance to coccidiosis. Feeding of a mash containing 40 percent dried skim milk or buttermilk has been advocated generally as effective in protecting young chicks from infection. The results from the use of milk have not been entirely consistent, so it cannot be recommended as a cure for the disease.

Coccidiosis is easily recognized by such symptoms as ruffled feathers, pallor, rapid emaciation and bloody droppings.

The disease is spread by contamination of the feed, water, and soil with droppings of fowls which harbor the parasites. The parasite may be carried by water, or on shoes, grain sacks, or other objects. It is also spread by birds or insects which fly from one poultry yard to another. Rats and mice also may serve as carriers of the organism.

SAFETY EQUIPMENT FEATURES SCHOOL BUSES

(By J. S. Vandiver)

The safety and equipment features of the uniform highway traffic act passed at the recent session of the legislature applies to school buses as well as to other transportation equipment.

All school buses must be equipped with proper lights, horns, rear view mirrors, fire extinguishers, and other safety equipment as listed in this act. After two years from the passage of the act, all new school bus equipment must be equipped with safety glass and any new glass replaced in old equipment must be with safety glass. Many of the county superintendents and county school boards this year are requiring better equipment for the transportation routes where this equipment will not add to the cost of their transportation.

The State Board of Education is encouraging the use of all safety features and better equipment, generally, provided plans can be worked out so that this will not increase the cost of transportation. This can be done within the school budgets. We feel that wherever possible the county school boards should begin to replace old equipment [illegible] bodies properly equipped so as to insure the safety of the children transported. This can be done in many cases by combining routes so that a large number of pupils may be transported on each bus.

With the increasing hazards of transportation on our highways, every precaution should be used by the County School Board and County Superintendents in protecting the lives of the thousands of boys and girls transported to school each day.

COMPLETION OF HIGHWAY SEVEN BEST OF INVESTMENTS FOR STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

GREAT SAVING TO MOTORISTS OF NORTH AND EAST IN MILEAGE, WILL INDUCE THEM TO VISIT NUMEROUS POINTS IN THIS COMMONWEALTH, PARTICULARLY THE FAMOUS GULF COAST.

In order to use a good highway, travelers, business men and tourist, from points north and east of Jackson, Tenn., are routed around by Memphis to reach places in central Mississippi and on down to the Gulf Coast. Every such traveler drives fifty to seventy-five miles farther than should be necessary.

When Highway No. 7 is completed this saving of distance will attract many tourists into Mississippi who otherwise go on west from Memphis and pass Mississippi by.

The accompanying map shows the hook-up of No. 7 with Tennessee Highway No. 18 to Jackson where it meets U. S. No. 70, the "Broadway of America". The link between Holly Springs and Michigan City is the only new road-laying required and will not be expensive.

The benefit to the entire State of completing No. 7 is evident. Every citizen from Governor White down knows that each additional tourist means increased revenue, and that tourists travel the new paved highways which offer the shortest distance.

Locally, the towns on No. 7 are becoming isolated, as U. S. No. 51 increasingly takes the essential north and south traffic.

It is now up to everyone interested in the progress of north central Mississippi to "GET BUSY." The entire State should be awakened to its opportunity. Roads are to be designated at the Special Session of the legislature called for June 27.

Demand Action From Your Representative

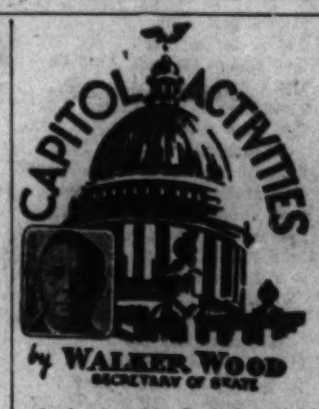
The cost of building this short "Missing Link" will be very small compared with sums being spent elsewhere which will not attract nearly so many tourists from other States.

Colonel Will Hoffa Says:
Editor Sentinel:

Highway No. 7, extending from the state line near Michigan City to Grenada through the towns of Holly Springs, Oxford, Water Valley, Coffeeville, is one of the most important roads in North Mississippi today, with this road built and connected with No. 18, above Michigan City an immense stream of travel will be turned through Mississippi, hardly equalled by any other road in the state.. That continuous stream of travel coming down the Bristol highway from the North and East and seeking a Southern and Southwestern route the shortest and best will take advantage of this route.

A further extension from Grenada would be to Holcomb, Greenwood, Tchula, Yazoo City, Redwood, Vicksburg, making the distance from Vicksburg to Chicago by way of Yazoo City, Tchula, Greenwood, Grenada, Water Valley, Oxford, Holly Springs, Jackson, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky., about one hundred miles shorter than any other route. This road from Grenada to the state line is entitled to and will get Federal Aid. Our great University at Oxford certainly deserves a first class road and our people over the state should see that she gets it. I believe all our highway commissioners will agree to such a much needed improvement and put the enterprise through. So let's everybody work to that desirable end.

Sincerely,
W. B. HOFFA.



In last week's Capitol Activities, I touched on the high points of Senate Bill No. 132, which is the Uniform Highway Traffic Regulation Act, but in treating other items in connection I had only space to deal with the first three Articles of said law. Today, we will pay especial attention to the provisions of other Articles in this law, as follows:

Article 4 of this act treats of accidents on the public highways, including both personal injuries and accidental death, or accidents resulting in damage to vehicles or property, and provides that the driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injury or death of a person shall stop immediately and return to the scene of the accident, give his name, address, license number of vehicle, and do everything in his power to attend to the immediate needs of the party injured, and heavy fines are imposed for a violation of this requirement. A report shall be made in case of personal injury, or death, and of damage to a vehicle or other property. If a driver be unable to make a report of the accident, then such duty is imposed on any other occupant of the machine that is able to do so.

Article 5 treats of negligent homicides, drunken driving, and imposes severe penalties in case of either offense.

Article 6 deals with speed limits, placing the speed limit as follows:

1. Twenty miles per hour in any business district; 2. Twenty-five miles per hour in any residence district; 3. Fifty-five miles per hour under other conditions. Provided that the speed limit of trucks shall be forty miles per hour.

Local authorities are permitted to alter prima facie speed limits, lowering them under certain conditions, and on through highways raising them if necessary, but in no case more than 45 miles per hour. However, no person shall drive a motor vehicle at such slow speed as to impede or block traffic, except where such slow speed is necessary for safety or in compliance with law.

Article 7 treats of driving on right side of roadway, overtaking and passing vehicles, etc. It provides that upon all highways of sufficient width vehicles shall be driven on the right side, except as follows:

When overtaking or passing a vehicle going in same direction; or when the right side of a roadway is under construction or closed to traffic; or upon a roadway divided into three marked lanes for traffic; or upon a roadway designated and sign-posted for one-way traffic.

Drivers going in opposite directions, shall pass each other on the right, and when roadway is only wide enough for two cars, each driver is required to give one-half of the road.

The driver of a vehicle overtaking another vehicle in the same direction shall pass on the left and shall not then proceed to the right side until a safe distance beyond the vehicle passed.

Article 8 is devoted to instructions on turning and starting and signals on stopping and turning. For example the bill recites that the approach for a right turn, and the right turn itself, should be made as close to the right hand curb or edge of the roadway, as practical, and that a left hand approach for turn shall be made in that portion of the right half of the roadway nearest the center line thereof.

No person shall start a vehicle, standing or parked, until such movement can be made with reasonable safety, and no person shall turn a vehicle from a direct course on a highway until such turn can be made with reasonable safety. A signal of intention to turn right or left, shall be given continuously for a reasonable distance before turning.

Article 9 treats of right of way at intersections, thusly:

The driver of a vehicle approaching an intersection to a vehicle which has entered an intersection from a different highway. And when two drivers or vehicles enter an intersection from different highways at the same time, the vehicle on the left shall have the right-of-way to the vehicle on the right.

The driver of a vehicle within an intersection, intending to turn to the left, shall yield the right of way to any vehicle approaching from the opposite direction, and which is within the intersection or so close as to constitute an immediate hazard.

The driver of a vehicle about to enter or cross a highway or private road shall yield the right of way to all vehicles approaching on the highway.

Article 10 treats of the rights and duties of pedestrians, and declares that pedestrians shall be subject to traffic control signals at intersections as heretofore declared, but at all other places pedestrians shall be accorded the privileges and subject to the restrictions stated in this article. It further defines the rights accorded to a pedestrian, where traffic signals are not in place, and cautions drivers of vehicles to yield right of way to a pedestrian when crossing the roadway, except as otherwise provided.

"Jay-walking" is dealt with in Section 77 of this act, when it is required that every pedestrian crossing a roadway at any point other than within a marked or unmarked cross walk shall yield the right of way to all vehicles upon the roadway. Between adjacent intersections where traffic signals are in operation, pedestrians shall not cross at any place except in a marked cross walk: But, the law specifies, that notwithstanding these provisions, every vehicle driver shall exercise due caution to avoid colliding with a pedestrian shall give warning by sounding the horn when necessary, and shall use proper precaution on observing any child, or any confused or incapacitated person on the roadway.

Pedestrians shall move whenever practical upon the right half of cross walks.

No person shall stand in a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of any private vehicle.

Article 11 deals with matters very important to motor vehicle drivers in towns and cities, especially where cars are yet operated, and this does not mean "Buses," Section 80 provides that the driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass on the left side of a street car proceeding in the same direction, whether such street car is in motion, or temporarily at rest—except as follows:

1. When so directed by a police officer, or
2. When upon a one-way street, or
3. When on a street where the tracks are so located as to prevent compliance with this section.

The general provision for approaching or passing a street car, is that said street car has stopped for the loading or unloading of passengers, or about to do so, a for the loading or unloading of about to pass from the rear, shall ststop at least five feet to the rear of the nearest running board, and otherwise use all precaution to preevnt accidents

When a street car has started to cross an intersection, no driver of a vehicle shall drive upon or cross the intersection in front of said street car, nor shall a driver overtaking or passing a street car, on an intersection, pass in front of said street car, so as to interfere with or impede its movement.

MISSISSIPPI FARM NEWS

(By F. J. Hurst)

Farm and Home Week—biggest educational and recreational event of the year for Mississippi farmers and farm women—will be held at Mississippi State College, July 26-28. The program will include contests, conferences, discussions, exhibits, tours, instruction, general assembly program, public speaking, and numerous entertainment features. The week's activities will be in charge of President Duke Humphrey; E. H. White, director of extension; Dr. Clarence Dorman, director of experiment stations; and Professor Ernest Colmer, dean of the school of agriculture, assisted by the entire personnel of the state extension staff and experiment station. From 3,000 to 5,000 farmers and farm women are expected during the week. Rooms will be furnished in the college dormitories and meals will be served in the collefe cafeteria.

Three special days have been planned. Tuesday, July 26, will feature dairying, forestry, horticulture and home economics and women's contests.

Wednesday, July 27, animal husbandry, agricultural engineering and agricultural economics will have right of way.

On Thursday, July 28, the spotlight will be turned on poultry, soils and crops, home management clothing and nutrition.

It will be the biggest opportunity of the year for farmers to get away from the farm a few days, take a needed vacation, and get a lot of new ideas and information that will help them in their farming operations.

Investigations by the state plant board reveal that there are enough boll weevils in the cotton fields now to produce a heavy infestation by mid-summer if conditions remain favorable. There are three general methods of applying poison to cotton plants in the pre-square stage. Some growers prefer to mop the small plants with a mixture of 1 pound of calcium arsenate, 1 gallon of water, and 1 gallon of molasses. Others prefer to dust the plants with calcium arsenate, or to apply a liquid mixture with a spray pump. All are effective.

After the cotton has reached the squaring stage the control method generally used is to dust the cotton fields with calcium-arsenate dust at the rate of 5 pounds per acre, and repeat the application at 5 day intervals until the weevils are checked. On light sandy soils, where there is danger of soil injury from heavy applications of calcium arsenate, a mixture of equal parts of lime and calcium arsenate is recommended.

There are 92,683 head of breeding cattle in Mississippi under state-federal supervision for control of Bang's disease, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This is 9 percent of the breeding cattle in the state.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts that egg prices will likely go up from now until late fall. With improved prices in prospect it will pay poultry producers to feed their hens for heavy production. The laying hens should receive plenty of clean water, an abundance of green grazing, plenty of shade, and a balanced ration that contains at least 16 to 18 percent protein. Since high quality eggs bring higher prices on most markets it will pay to produce clean, infertile eggs. The nests should be kept clean, the eggs gathered 3 or 4 times daily, stored in a cool place and marketed at least twice weekly.

Paper garment bags ,wrapping paper, and cardboard boxes protect garments against moths only if they are sealed tightly at every opening and if the clothes were entirely free from moths when the container was sealed.

Mississippi Weekly Cotton Insect Report

State College, Miss., June 8—Severe boll weevil damage is indicated in Mississippi this season with normal weather conditions, according to observations made during the past week by State Plant Board inspectors and Government entomologists. Of 79 farms examined in 12 counties, weevils were present on 61, or more than 75 percent as compared with about 35 percent on this date last year. The average infestation on the infested farms was 312 weevils per acre, which compares with 138 at this time last year and 66 on the same date in 1936.

Farms were found very generally and heavily infested in Oktibbeha and Lowndes counties where 43 out of 45 fields had weevils, the highest infestation being 1800 per acre on an Oktibbeha farm In Washington county, where only one field with squares was examined, the infestation was 30 percent which compares with 4 percent on the same place at this date last year.

Fleahoppers were reported numerous in some sections, with lice present in a few fields. Some late cotton in Washington county showed leaf injury by thrips.

Unless the summer should be very hot and dry, indications are that weevils will cause heavy damage in most sections of the state, according to Clay Lyle, Entomologist of the Board. Dr. Lyle advises all planters to be prepared to poison when an infestation of 10 to 15 percent occurs on plants fruiting well, but to make no applications until actual infestation counts show poison is needed.

Corn Acreage Upped But Still Is Under Normal State Needs

Time Remains for Late Feed Crops on Available Land, and to Increase Yield Per Acre By Fertilizing.

Despite an apparently substantial increase in acreage, the 1938 corn crop is almost sure to yield millions of bushels less than normal requirements of the state, according to J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture, in recommending the application of quickly available nitrogen fertilizer to increase the turnout per acre.

The state's need is estimated at 70 million bushels annually while production has always been less except the record year 1917 and its bumper crop of 84 million bushels. The 1928-32 average was 32,192,000 bushels. More recently the annual yield has steadily increased to 45,378,000 bushels in 1937.

"Apparently there will be something like three million acres of corn this year, to yield at the long-time average rate per acre about 45 million bushels, varying upward or downward from that figure as conditions are better or poorer than the average. This means a deficit of something like 25 million bushels, equivalent in cost of replacement to about 500,000 bales of cotton at present prices.

"There is still time for planting late corn, peas, beans, and other feed crops and the cost of seeds is low. Granted that maximum acreage will be planted, the broadest avenue of increased yields is to harvest more corn per acre.

"Experiment stations all over the South report splendid results from applications of quickly available nitrogen fertilizer when the corn is from knee to waist high. Thus, the 15-year average increase from the application of 200 pounds of material (containing about 30 pounds of quickly available nitrogen) at the Delta Branch Station, is 16.6 bushels. The Central Station at State College gives an average increase of 10.1 bushels. South Carolina reports 18.7 bushels increase, and Alabama shows increases of 16.2 bushels and 13.2 bushels from sandy and heavy soils respectively. From these reports it is apparent that the yield of corn should be increased by 10 to 18 bushels per acre by the use of fertilizer which costs $3.50 or thereabouts. Certainly that is cheap corn.

"Much of the credit for Mississippi's record breaking cotton crops, both in 1936 and in 1937, is due to intelligent, judicious fertilization. As much can be done in the instance of corn."

4-H Canning Contest Enters Tenth Year; Offers Special Award

The National 4-H Canning Contest conducted under supervision of the Agricultural Extension Service of the various states celebrates its tenth anniversary this year by supplementing the usual awards with a 25-quart pressure retort to each alternate state winner.

Over 225,000 girls and about 1,000 boys are estimated to be enrolled this season in canning activities, which are expected to produce for home consumption and exhibition 8,000,000 jars. Many of these clubsters also carry garden and fruit growing projects, which have roundly 220,000 enrolled and yield 1,000,000 bushels of produce for canning and sale.

All regularly enrolled canning clubsters in the state are eligible to enter the contest which requires only that they fill out a form provided by their leaders on the amount canned, exhibits, contests and related activities.

Each county winner is awarded a handsome gold medal, the state victor receives an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress to be held in Chicago early in December, and college scholarships totaling $1,000 will be presented the four sectional winners and national winner through the Kerr Glass Corporation, which has supported the contest from the start.

Thirty-six states took part in last year's contest in which Mary F. Thompson, 17, of Durham, N. C. won national honors and a $400 scholarship, on eight years of canning achievements. Mabel Cramer, 19, near Helena, Montana, Laura M. Bellin, 19, Theinsville, Wisconsin, and Susan Micka, 19, of Easthampton, Massachusetts each won a $200 scholarship as sectional victors.

WHAT BEEF CATTLE CAN DO

An appealing little human interest story which may carry a worth while suggestion for other farmers is this account of a new venture contributed to The Progressive Farmer by Cavil Halliburton of Botetourt County, Va.:

"I have seen my cattle remake an old wornout farm; make galled spots into grassy sod, make gully-ripped hillsides into grazing boundaries, make water-washed, row-worked tobacco fields, long since robbed of fertility, take on new life, with luxurious matted, green grasses. I have seen an acre of land grow two tons of peas where, before cows and calves came, peas would hardly sprout. I have seen the same cows and calves furnish milk and meat for my home; enrich gardens which produced nourishing vegetables that filled our pantries. I have seen those cows and calves built a new house and barns, put in electric current, put screens on doors and windows of that house, put water in the kitchen and bath, put washing machine in basement, books and radio and daily newspapers and magazines on the living room table. And further, I have seen them furnish family transportation and modern farm machinery. And finally, I have seen them stimulate ne winterest in man and family for farm land and the way of farm life.

"Now I ask: Does cotton or tobacco or commercial vegetable farming fill the home pantry, give men new interest in their work, rebuild and hold soils, and produce a money income as does beef cattle farming? Is there any phase of agriculture in the South today which compares with beef cattle farming for income? If there is, let me hear about it"

U. S. Army News

How would you like to travel this summer? If you are young, healthy, and like adventure, the chance is yours. In the next few weeks the Army is enlisting a few selected men for service in the Hawaiian Islands.

If you are among the lucky ones, you get a free round trip from your home, embarking at Charleston on an Army cruise ship to Hawaii. First a stopover at historic and glamorous Panama—the crossroads of the world. Then through the Canal and along the shores of Old Mexico to the Blue Pacific and San Francisco. Here you stop to see the sights of that famous port, then west through the Golden Gate to the land of the Hula and romantic Waikiki Beach.

Two years of tropic adventure are yours in a modern Army post, where you live with real men who enjoy all the sports and pleasure of a city and have the sightseeing advantages of the richest tourist. Sure, you have to work. But outdoors man's work, with a bunch of good fellows in step with you. In after life, you'll look back on those years as among those for the book. And your old army friends as among those who come first. Sounds good, doesn't it? What's the catch? You'll have to tell me because, in addition to all this, you are paid twenty-one dollars a month and pounds; are given free medical and dental treatment and have access to post libraries, schools and the best of athletic equipment. Oh, yes, all sports are encouraged. You know, Dizzy Dean got his start in the army.

You can come home after your enlistment, full of stories and ready to go back into civil life a healthier and better prepared man or, if you want to make soldiering your profession you'll find it an attractive and regularly paid job with every chance of advancement.

Why not give the army a chance? It's all on Uncle Sam. A great many big men of today did. One of them is General Harbord, now head of the Radio Corporation of America, who began his brilliant career as an enlisted man in the army.

GAR RODEOS TO BE STAGED

Three Gar Rodeos will be staged in Mississippi during August under joint sponsorship of local groups and the State Game and Fish Commission, Commissioner Reuben R. Banks of Columbus, has announced.

Each Rodeo will be for a two day period on lakes in the vicinity of the headquarters. The first date that is set is August 17 and 18 to be in Leflore county with Greenwood as headquarters. The Chamber of Commerce is the local sponsor.

Dates for the Rodeos to be staged in streams around Gulfport and in Warren county on Eagle Lake and other bodies of water in the area have not been set.

The Game and Fish Commission will offer two main awards, according to Commissioner Banks. One will be for the largest gar and the other for the greatest number of the predatory fishlife.

Commissioner Banks said the only entrance fee will be to have a resident or non-resident fishing license. Equipment will be any legalized game fish tackle, rod and reel, troll, or pole and line. The contestant may select his own type hooks. Harpooning and gigging will be allowed.

Ridding lakes, ponds and streams of gar is one of the major programs of the state commission, and the statewide events will tie in with this work and at the same time afford a sport for those participating.

He looks after you all the time. Let's join together and make him comfortable next Sunday. Give him a good meal and let him smoke his pipe in the parlor if he wants to. And remember that Jitney-Jungle is the place to get the things that Dad likes to eat.
